The Durrettts believe being associated with CHS offers a strong feeling of confidence for buyers.

“People trust Steve Friskup; they know his consigners are going to bring a good product,” Romni says. “If we sell one with Clovis, it needs to be something the public can have confidence in. Buyers come back year after year because they know that, and we’re happy to be a part of it.”

ZIEMAN RANCH

DURRETT CATTLE

Romni Durrett recalls her family breeding horses since the inception of the American Quarter Horse Association. When Romni married her husband Will Durrett, the two carried on their family’s ranching and breeding traditions in the Texas Panhandle.

“We raise ranch horses primarily because we have eight full-time cowboys, and we would like to see them utilizing our herd,” Romni says. “It’s expanded now to where we’re going to sales and trying to promote our product to the public more. I love that Clovis Horse Sales started the cow horse futurity, because that is our nest-egg as AQHA Ranching Heritage Breeders.”

Ted and Deide Zieman have been raising horses for over 30 years at their ranch 20 miles east of Dalhart, Texas. While Ted’s initial breeding intent was rope HORSES over the years he has phased into a more cow horse-centered focus. As a founding member of the High Plains Ranchers and Breeders Association, Zieman has been an integral part of keeping Texas’ ranching heritage thriving.

In addition to their horse program, the Zeiman ranch also includes a registered Angus cow herd and a commercial cow herd. They keep roughly a dozen broodmares, a ranch stud and utilize outside sires like Third Cutting, Metallic Echo and Cats Moonshine.

“We’re in the western industry and the western way of life, just like Clovis Horse Sales has been promoting,” Zieman says. “I figured if I could sponsor the CHS futurity and sale, it will help keep my name out there so when I have a horse to sell, folks will recognize my brand. CHS has done such a good job of promoting; there are buyers from across the country.” Zieman believes supporting events like CHS is part promoting a bigger purpose.

“If we don’t participate and help each other out, the western way of life and the horse industry could fade. The Friskups are all for God, family and USA — how could you not want to be a part of that?”

TM Quarter Horses & Martin’s Last Dollar Ranch
Terry & Wanetta Martin - Canyon, TX

TERRY MARTIN

The Martins’ breeding program has long and strong ties to Clovis Horse Sales. The Martins purchased their late stallion Docs Frosty Lena CT through the sale in 1998 as a 2-year-old. In 2023, 24 years later, the Martins said goodbye to the stallion who helped create their breeding operation. They remain faithful to the sale — and auctioneer — who brought the stallion into their lives.

While “Frosty” pointed Terry and wife Wanetta in the direction of reining, they didn’t lose sight of their overarching goal to raise horses suited for other disciplines.

“We like to raise them to where a person can rope on them.

Even the ones that are straight reining bred are usually suited for roping. We raise them and try to sell them as yearlings. While we’re drifting more to the cow horse, we still try to sell one or two in the reining, because that’s what we’ve been doing for quite a long time.”

Utilizing the broodmare band they’ve carefully cultivated, the couple breeds to outside stallions.

“The futurity adds a good deal of value to our colts,” Martin says. “Steve’s reputation also means a lot to us. When he says something, it means something. We like horses that go through Clovis Horse Sales, and we like the western way of life.”

CLOVIS VET SUPPLY

In the hometown of Clovis Horse Sales is Clovis Vet Supply, a large animal health store, selling vaccines and prescriptions, among other large and small animal offerings.

While the horse sale no longer calls Clovis home, the store remains committed to supporting the sale owner, whom Dusty Leatherwood calls the standard in horse sales.

“When CHS changes or does something new, so many others follow suit,” Leatherwood says. “Friskup is always trying to make it better, always offering something for everyone. They can find a good horse to go do their job or go have fun on.”

Leatherwood is partially retired, only manning the store when needed, and enjoys staying entered up in team ropings. He runs the store, sells horses and was recently elected county commissioner.

“We grew up Western, that’s all we know,” Leatherwood says. “The Western lifestyle is our lifestyle and we try to support what supports us.”

ROCKER b RANCH

West Texas' Rocker b Ranch finds that breeding for what is most useful and best fits their cowboys is also subsequently breeding for what much of the public wants.

Rocker b Ranch

“CHS is a good fit for the horses we raise. We're not the highest-end of the reined cow horse or cutters, but we do have a strong influence in our ranch horses and that sale seems to be a good fit for that style of HORSES” Sarah Webb says.

Webb is the equine breeding and office manager and has been at the wheel of bringing the Rocker b breeding program along for the last decade. She's responsible for transitioning the breeding from live cover to artificial insemination, managing the ranch's three stallions — Lizzatella, SJR Hirey, RN One Curly Cat — and broodmare band.

The ranch aims to grow the mare band by retaining fillies they've raised and purchasing mares with genetics they like. They have 30 mares and 40 to 50 geldings.

“Usually we have seven or eight full-time cowboys who each have country to care for, and they all have a string,” Webb says. Any fillies the team wants to keep in the mare band are always ridden first, so there are a handful of fillies in their using string, too.”

“We need size, we need bone and we need something with a brain in its head,” Webb says. “Our guys are all a little different; some of them like watch-y and feely, some of them need something a little more calm. We've fixed our stud battery that way, and we know what our mares throw to get what we need.”

SANDHILL CATTLE + HORSES

Sandhill Cattle + Horses was established in the Texas panhandle by Tripp Townsend in 1998. In the summer months, Sandhill leases 15,000 acres of grass in Lamb County to run 1,500 head of company and customer cattle. During the winter, the Sandhill crew cares for 3,000 head on wheat pasture. Sandhill also owns a 2,000 head pre-conditioning lot and 200 head of cows.

Sandhill Cattle + Horses is home to TRR Lucky Brazos, a 2016 stallion by Pepcid, out of Playgun daughter, TRR Ms Lucky Playgun. In 2019, with Tripp aboard “Hiptown” was the NRCHA Snaffle Bit Futurity Limited Open Champion and has since amassed over $100,000 in his successful showing and roping career. He continues to be used in ranch rodeos, horse shows, and in the heading and heeling. Hiptown stands to the public at Mobile Veterinary Practice of Amarillo, Texas, and Sandhill is excited to offer a select number of his home-raised offspring for sale each year.

CARTER RANCH HORSE

A native of CHS's hometown, Tara Carter is proud of the horses she's grown up around.

RANCH + HORSE

“Our area is known for good all-around HORSES and the fact CHS expanded has added programs like cow horse and rope horse, so it helped showcase the great horses from our area. We wanted to get behind that,” Tara says.

The Carters are partners on the Bogle Brothers-bred stallion MC Cowhammer, a son of Metallic Cat with lifetime earnings over $130,000.

“It's really cool, because he's Bogle Brothers bred, and Bogle ranches think like we do — ranching makes great horses and makes them dependable for their lifetimes. Some will go on to compete at really high levels, but with a foundation based in ranching and the experiences that come from being in our area. They carry that with them to whatever level they go. Bogle Brothers has believed that for generations.”

“We honestly didn't do a sponsorship for the advertising part of it,” Tara says “We just love the idea and the quality the sale represents, and we want to support that and help grow that in our area. We've always felt like we've raised and trained valuable HORSES and that sale keeps bringing out the value of those horses.”

JOBE RANCH LIVESTOCK

When drought in Southwest Texas hit, Jobe Ranch Livestock put new roots down in Perrin, Texas.

“Really and truly, it was one of those things — we didn’t set out to raise HORSES but I couldn’t find the kind of horses I wanted consistently. What we’re trying to raise is a better ranch horse, high-end ranch horse, but also horses that fit the performance horse world that still have enough size and bone and substance that they can fit in the ranching world too,” says owner Brooks Jobe.

The ranch’s three stallions and 30 broodmares are producing quality horses Jobe intends to continue selling. Futurities like CHS give buyers an opportunity to compete in arenas well-suited for the type of horses the ranch is raising.

“There are a lot of horses we raised that may not be exactly fit for the NRCHA Snaffle Bit Futurity, but they do fit CHS futurities, Ranch Horse Association of America and shows like that,” Jobe says. “There are not a lot of opportunities for the people or horses that cross over between both the ranching and performance horse world, and it’s been a good market for the kinds of horses I have been raising.”

HOUSLER RANCH AND PERFORMANCE HORSES

Wes Housler has a barn full of customer cow horses under his Housler Ranch and Performance Horses business in south central New Mexico. Not having grown up in the business, Housler recalls getting into horses because of a friend whose family traded horses.

“I got my start in the late 90s running around the Clovis and Roswell horse sales. That was how I got the horse bug; I traded horses and then got into showing. I’ve met a lot of people, and customers I’ve gotten over the years, I probably ran into them there,” Housler says.

Having spent so many years at CHS, Housler appreciates how the sale strives to stay one step ahead of the rest with shows and incentives added to the horse show schedule. Housler doesn’t raise his own, he buys them, many from CHS. If Housler isn’t at a NRCHA show, it doesn’t mean he’s not riding his show horses.

“We still day-work a bunch and help around here, and often we’ll use our show horses. That’s one thing Steve Friskup has bragged about when I take one there to sell, it’s a show horse but it’s been used and treated like a horse and ranched on and been exposed,” Housler says. “I like taking one there if I’ve got one and it fits his deal, because he’ll sell him for you.”

Smith Performance Horses

“We Raise Horses For The Life We Love”

SMITH PERFORMANCE HORSES

Smith Performance Horses is located in Dickens, Texas. Wayne and Janna Smith have been breeding American Quarter Horses for 39 years. Their broodmare band consists of 25 mares and 4 stallions. They also have a cow/calf operation. They have raised horses that are winners in cutting, reined cow horse, team penning, team roping and barrel racing. Our horses have been to the NFR, placed at the Riata Buckle, The American Rope Horse Futurity and the Snaffle Bit Futurity. Wayne and Janna strive to raise horses with talent, ability and trainability. “We raise horses for the life we love.”
